Dear Janet,

I'm writing in response to WQ81379: Will the Minister confirm when the £500 self-isolation grant to those on low incomes will be made available and how this will be administered?

People on low incomes can apply to receive a £500 payment if they have tested positive for coronavirus or they are asked to self-isolate by the NHS Wales Test, Trace, Protect service because they have been in close contact with someone who has tested positive for coronavirus.

The payment is available to people on a low income who are unable to work from home and would lose income as a result of self-isolating. To be eligible, people must be self-isolating and in receipt of Universal Credit or another specified benefit or meet one of the discretionary criteria.

The final arrangements are being made for the Self-Isolation Payment scheme. People will be able to apply for the payments via their local authority website from 16 November.

Yours sincerely,
