Answer received for publication on 06 March 2012

The Minister for Education and Skills (Leighton Andrews): All schools must have an anti-bullying policy and it is up to schools to determine how those policies are implemented. The Welsh Government's anti-bullying guidance is one of a number of materials which schools may use to develop and implement measures to tackle bullying.

It is the role of Estyn, as part of its inspection programme, to evaluate the arrangements schools have in place for dealing with bullying, and how well schools promote the prevention and elimination of oppressive behaviour, including bullying.
